What is Good Stewardship?

Excerpt from "Catholic Update" August 2005

In our Church today, few concepts are more misunderstood than the concept of Catholic stewardship. Many hear the word "stewardship" and immediately it morphs into "fund-raising." But that is not really what stewardship is about. Not at all.

Quite simply, the good steward is the person who takes care of whatever it is that she or he has been entrusted. Uses it well, to good purpose. Doesn't squander it. As the U.S. Catholic bishops said in Stewardship: A Disciple's Response: "A Christian steward is one who receives God's gifts gratefully, cherishes and tends them in a responsible and accountable manner, shares them in justice and love with others and returns them with increase to the Lord."

When we think about it, good stewardship affects every part of our lives. If we have wasted a talent, or dawdle our time away with worthless pursuits, or squander our resources, something inside of us just doesn't feel right. That's because our inner compass senses the right direction, even when we sometimes wander off course.

On the other hand, when we are using our time, our talents and our material resources well, we feel in balance, in tune with God. We realize we have been generously given those gifts and, in turn, we are using them for good purposes.

Movie Summary ...

This documentary is great! It has lots of interviews from people who knew Francis at all parts of his life: childhood friends, priests, politicians, and parishioners. You learn about so many endearing stories, like how Bergoglio saved a Jesuit priest from execution during the Argentine civil war, how he frequently visited residents of the Buenos Aires slums, how he confronted Argentine politicians in his homilies, and even how he's had a lifelong love of the San Lorenzo soccer team!
